Yale's Hair Tonic a vigorous growth will be produced. It has honestly earned its title of "the great hair grower." It stimulates the most stunted growth and makes the hair magnificently

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is prized equally by men and women, particularly baldness, grayness, splitting of the hair, dandruff and all diseases of the hair, scalp and beard. One application stops hair falling. A nurser; requisite; no mother should neglect to use it for her boys and girls; when the hair is made strong in childhood it remains proof against disease and retains its vigor and youthfulness throughout life.

Mme. Vale's Hair Tonic is a colorless, fragrant, delightful hair dressing neither sticky, gritty nor greasy; makes the hair soft, finfly and glossy. Contains no artificial col-oring; would not soil the whitest hair; restores original color by invigorating the scalp and re-catabilishing normal circulation and proper distri-bution of the live coloring matter. Beautiful hair redeems the plainest countenance, and anyone can secure it by using Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic. Now in three sizes.

Plans for Entertaining Gen. Osterhaus in This City.

RECEPTION AND DINNER

HIS OLD COMRADES TO GREET HIM AT RAUSCHER'S.

Expected to Arrive This Evening-Will Be Guest of Representative Bartholdt at Willard's.

Elaborate plans are being made for the reception and entertainment of Gen. P. J. Osterhaus of civil war fame, who is to arrive in Washington this evening. He will be met at the B. and O. depot at 8:40 o'clock by Department Commander Hart of the G. A. R. and members of his staff; Col. John McElroy, Representative Bartholdt and others.

Gen. Osterhaus will stop at the New Willard Hotel as the guest of Representative Richard Bartholdt of Missouri. It is expected that after dinner this evening Gen. Osterhaus will receive a number of his comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic at the hotel. Tomorrow evening a banquet will be tendered Gen. Osterhaus at Rauscher's, and a similar entertainment will be provided for Saturday night. He will be received by President Roosevelt tomorrow afternoon.

The plans of the Whip-poor-wills for the reception and banquet to Gen. Osterhaus are completed, and a rousing welcome is to be extended to the old war-horse by his whilom comrades in arms, the veterans of the war of the rebellion, who are residents of the District of Columbia. The reception which is to be tendered to Gen. Osterhaus will be held at Rauscher's at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 29. The "Duo-decemvirs," who have the reception in charge, are: Col. Abram Hart, commander of the Depart-ment of Potomac, Grand Army of the Rement of Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic; Gen. S. Burdett, past commander-in-chief; Col. Thomas Hopkins, past commander; Col. L. G. Estes, Col. Fletcher White, Col. S. R. Burch, H. L. Johnson, A. Von Haake, Gen. Cyrus Bussey, Capt. R. G. Tyler, Major W. P. Huxford and Col. John McElroy, past senior vice commander-in-chief. Col. Geo. C. Ross will preside as Radamanthus, and Col. George E. Corson will be Grand Symposiarch. A large num-ber of eloquent speakers will be upon the program. Ex-Gov. Fifer's Tribute.

Ex-Gov. Joseph W. Fifer, who served with Gen. Osterhaus, and who was to have been one of the speakers, was suddenly called out of the city. In expressing his regret that his name must be withdrawn, Gov. Fifer took occasion to pay a high tribute to Gen. Osterhaus, saying:

"It would afford me great pleasure to be present and assist in doing honor to
Gen. Osterhaus, the great German-American hero, who holds a warm place in the hearts of his comrades of the civil war. "I have always entertained a high regard and admiration for General Osterhaus. In the darkest hour the nation ever saw he freely offered his life upon the altar of his adopted country, and did what he could to keep 'the jewel of liberty in the family of nations.' His services and his sacrifices in the transcendent cause of freedom and good government have endeared him to every true-hearted American, and his name is forever enshrined in the hearts of a grateful people. He was never the recipient of an honor that he did not fairly win, and attorney still feels the need of them. while many another star rose and set in the great conflict for the preservation of the American union, his burned with an ever-increasing luster to the last. "That he may live many years to enjoy

That he may live many years to enjoy the association of his family and friends is the sincere wish of one who shared his bat-tles and now rejoices with him in that peace which his valor did so much to con-quer."

Among the Guests.

Among those who will be at the banquet are several who followed the fortunes of war under Gen. Osterhaus' leadership, the members of the lower house of Congress, including Col. Vespasian Warner of Illinois, who served in the 20th Illinois Regiment, and Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor, who served in the 18th Ohio, and rose to brigadier general. Others are Robert Shaw Oliver of Massachusetts, assistant secretary of war, who served his country weil in both the infantry and cavalry along with Gen. Osterhaus, and Col. S. R. Burch, chief clerk of the Department of Agriculture, also with Osterhaus a part of the time. Col. Eugene Ware and Representative Bartholdt of Mis-Ware and Representative Bartholdt of Missouri will assist in honoring the venerable Prussian, whose residence in his own country is much brightened by the honors shown him there because of his splendid military nin there because of his spiendid minitary record in the war of the rebellion. His medals awarded "for valor" are of great interest to his fellow countrymen, and by imperial order all soldiers, both officers and men, salute the Grand Army badge when Gen. Osterhaus wears it.

Gen. Osterhaus is eighty-two years of age. His was a fine, soldierly figure, six feet tall, rugged and aggressive, during the war, but it is probable that thirty-six years have made some changes in his appearance. He returned to Germany to live with his daughter a third of a century ago, and not one of his old comrades has seen him in the time intervening.

One of the interesting features of the reception by the Whip-poor-wills will be the meeting between Gen. Rufus Saxton of Washington and Gen. Osterhaus. Gen. Sax-ton mustered Gen. Osterhaus into the service and he helped save the St. Louis arsenal and took part in the capture of Camp Jackson. The two now venerable officers have not met since the war.

Arrival in New York.

Gen. Osterhaus arrived in New York yeserday and was received by a committee of the Grand Army of the Republic. He was met at quarantine by three of his old comrades in arms, Henry Evers of St. Louis, of the 12th Missouri Volunteers, of which Gen. Osterhaus was at one time commander; Henry W. Cherouny of the 2d Missouri Volunteers, and Gen. Von Shaik.

One of his first visits made in New York was upon Mayor McClellan. The mayor is a son of Gen. McClellan, who was a warm personal friend of Gen. Osterhaus. personal friend of Gen. Osterhaus.

"Your father was one of the most scholarly officers in the army," said Gen. Osterhaus to Mr. McClellan. "His ability as an organizer was recognized by all, and the Union army owed much of subsequent success to his talents. If he did not meet with the success which was his due it was owing more to ill luck than anything else."

"You were born in Germany, I believe," the mayor's visitor said, after a pause.

"Yes, in Dresden," replied the mayor.

"Dresden is a beautiful city. But I have taken long bicycle rides in your part of the country, and I regard it as one of the prettiest spots in Germany."

Guest at Banquet.

Gen. Osterhaus was the guest of honor last night at a banquet given by leading German citizens of New York. After the dinner speeches were made in German by Carl Schurz, Henry W. Cherouny and Her-Carl Schurz, Henry W. Cherouny and Hermann B. Scharmann, and in English by Charles G. F. Wabie. All of the speakers referred to the work done for the country by Germans and of the better feeling now manifested toward them than was shown at the opening of the civil war. They gave to Gen. Osterhaus credit for having done much to bring about this change.

In replying, Gen. Osterhaus told how he enlisted while but a young man, and of how the Germans had saved Missouri to the Union. He asked the present and the rising generations to stand by the country of their adoption, to study its history, and in every way to make themselves the best citizens of the land.
